HULL DIRECTORS BACK IN TRAINING FOR CHARITY

Two well-known Hull businessmen will soon be back in their running shoes in training for next year's Humber Bridge Half Marathon to see if they can top the money they raised at this year's event.

Nick Ward, joint managing director of Hull-based glazing and conservatory specialists the EYG Group, and sales director John Waugh, have just handed over a cheque for £2,635 to the Marie Curie Cancer Care charity .

Nick, 37, was initially approached by Rotary Club members for sponsorship but soon found himself taking part in the event for the first time. He said: "I'd never run more than three miles in my life and that was when I was at school."

Having taken advice from the BUPA website he embarked on a training regime and, in spite of a few calf strains, he managed a creditable time of 2 hours 20 minutes. He and John are already now preparing themselves for next year's run.
