MOTHER OF FOUR WINS £10,000 CONSERVATORY

Mum of four Jane Schofield literally jumped for joy when she heard she had won the Telegraph Readers' Competition to win a £10,000 conservatory from UK home improvement specialists, the EYG Group.

Jane's name was the first to be drawn from a pile of around 500 entries that were submitted during the 12-week competition, one of our most successful in recent years.

Along with her children Daniel (14), Matthew (12), Rebecca (10) and Thomas (eight), Jane, from Market Deeping, collected her prize documents from EYG's Director of Marketing, Frank Saunders.

Frank said: "This was one of the biggest responses we've had to a Readers' Competition anywhere in the UK. We wanted to emphasise to readers that in these difficult economic times, it is wise to consider adding a conservatory to a house rather than a bricks and mortar extension, which is generally much more costly.

“Today’s conservatories, with their quality build standards, temperature controls and eco-glass, provide a cost-effective alternative to increasing the family’s habitable space. I’m sure Jane and her family will get a lot of enjoyment out of their prize.”

The EYG Group is one of the country’s leading conservatory and home improvement specialists and is well known in the East Midlands region having recently opened a new regional centre at Spalding.
